DARING PLUNGE RAISES £1802.70

Marston's public house, The Leckford Hutt, Leckford in Stockbridge, recently knocked down the kitchen wall and arranged a team of army divers to plunge into a 250 foot watery blackness in aid of Children in Need. This daring escapade raised a total of £1802.70.

Other events included the Hash House fun run which approximately 50 people took part in. Forfeits were imposed on anyone who slipped over or ran through puddles. These offenders had to drink a pint of Marston's Pedigree or have one tipped over their heads!

The food was donated by local businessmen, and a total of five lamb joints and countless sausages were bought by the customers. All proceeds were put towards to final total.
